YUGOSLAV POPULATION OF 16,250,000 TOPS PREWAR FIGURE

On 15 March 1948 Yugoslavia had 15,772,000 inhabitants. Because of war casualties and a low birth rate during the war, there was a decrease in population of 2,500,000. Recently the Federal Bureau of Statistics estimated the population of Yugoslavia to be 16,250,000 at the middle of 1950. In 1941 Yugoslavia had 16,220,000 inhabitants, excluding Istria and the Slovenian Primorje.

The following table shows the increase in population between 15 March 1948 and the middle of 1950, according to republics:

•	15 March 1948	Middle of 1950
Serbia	6,528,000	6,711,000
Croatia	3,757,000	3,829,000
Slovenia	1,392,000	1,422,000
Bosnia and Herzegovina	2,565,000	2,679,000
Macedonia	1,153,000	1,216,000
Montenegro "	. 377,000	393,000
Total	15,772,000	16,250,000

At the middle of 1950, the bureau estimated the population of Serbia proper to be 4,137,000, the Vojvodina 1,663,000, and Kosmet 728,000.

The census of 15 March 1948 divided the population into the following nationalities: 6,547,000 Serbs, 3,785,000 Croats, 1,415,000 Slovenes, 810,000 Macedonians, 426,000 Montenegrins, and 809,000 unclassified /as to nationality/ Moslems (Moslems of Turkish nationality are not included in the above number).
